Ruth Dodd to head CVPOA

Ignored wire to PlanCom told at meeting

A telegraphed request to the County Planning Commission by the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association to delay a decision on the proposed new county subdivision ordinance for 30 days was rejected at last Wednesday's meeting of the PlanCom, which then passed the ordinance that day.

This was revealed at the annual CVPOA meeting at Tularcitos School Thursday night when County Planning Director Ed DeMars spoke.

With Miss Ruth Dodd succeeding C. L. Underwood as president, the entire slate of new officers was approved as presented by the nominating committee, chairmaned by Mason Rhodes.

Also elected were Emil C. Hansen, vice president; Richard Kern, secretary, and Col. Stanley T.B. Johnson, treasurer. Directors are Frank Bresk, Louis J. Bruener, Mrs. Jo Estelle Cleary, Dr. Ben Dahle, Mrs. Barbara Sherman, Col. St. E.P. Tyner, Mrs. John Woolfenden, Richard Wilsdon and Underwood.

Miss Dodd, who retired to Carmel Valley in 1960, was director of curriculum in the office of the Sacramento County Superintendent of Schools. She is a former president of the California State Supervisors Association, which includes curricula supervisors. She has also been a director of the national curriculum directors' organization and has participated in conferences in Washington.

A graduate of University of California, she has also done graduate work at Columbia and Stanford universities. Last year she returned from an 11-month around the world trip, spending most of the time in the Near East and India.

CVPOA IGNORED

The fact that the County Planning Commission had chosen to approve the new subdivision ordinance in spite of CVPOA's request for a 30-day continuance was emphasized by Nancy Strathmeyer, realtor and local leader.

"Why did the commission postpone approval for 18 months of the Area General Plan at the request of the large-property owners' organization, but refuse a mere 30-day delay of the new subdivision ordinance at the request of CVPOA?" she demanded.

She said she was concerned that the new subdivision ordinance would penalize small-property owners who may want to divide their property into two, three or four pieces.

She pointed out that the CVPOA request for postponement had been made because no representative of CVPOA had been able to attend the PlanCom hearing on the subdivision ordinance Wednesday and that changes were continually being made over the past several months, including several major changes on the final day, Wednesday.

CUSD board plans for future expansion, 1968 summer school

"The School Board is ready at a 24 hour notice to meet on pupil housing in the district. Housing is critical NOW at Tularcitos and NOW at Carmel High School." So stated president Clayton Neill at last week's trustees' meeting.

Harris Taylor announced that within the next two weeks, he will require another study session on the matter, since the need for additional rooms is close at hand for Middle School, also, in addition to the other two mentioned by Neill.

REPORT SOON

"I shall have a shorter, more concise document for the board with the rationale for the decisions to be made, including the capabilities of the sites to take construction," he added.

OUTDOOR CLASSROOM

Another information item, not presented for action by the board, was a report by Harold Lippstreu, drafting instructor at the high school, on work done by his second year class in planning an outdoor classroom.

Slides were shown of the class on field trips and each of five students told of his participation in the project.

Randy Douglas stated that the project gave them a good idea of what professionals might be faced with if given such an assignment. Other class members who were present were Jay Argust, Jeff Wickham, Jim Baldwin and Michael Burz.

GRANT APPLICATION

A request to submit a Title III grant application for funds to develop the vocational-technical basic educational courses was approved by the board. This upgrading program for non-academic high school students would include business subjects, graphic arts, home appliance repair, floriculture-horticulture and fire science given in an intensive five week summer workshop.

SUMMER SCHOOL

The four week program for 1968 will combine teacher in-training with student instruction, with teachers getting class credit from Pepperdine College for the work, according to Supt. Harris Taylor.

It will involve elementary school pupils only in a four hour day at Carmelo School, dealing with the use of and production of individualized instruction materials.

EDITORIAL

Lack of communication with county

A conspicuous example of the too-often "don't bother me" attitude of county government was spotlighted at Thursday night's Carmel Valley Property Owners Association meeting.

C.L. Underwood, retiring CVPOA president, had sent a telegram to the County Planning Commission, requesting a 30-day delay in approval of the important new subdivision ordinance at the commission's meeting Wednesday last week. He or another CVPOA representative couldn't attend, so the request to put off approval of the subdivision ordinance, which is of major importance to Carmel Valley, seemed reasonable enough.

Dr. Ed Marcucci, the Valley's representative on the PlanCom, had believed that Wednesday's meeting of the commission would be a study session and had told this to interested CVPOA members. For this reason and others no CVPOA representative attended.

But the PlanCom, blithely ignoring the CVPOA's telegram request for postponement, went ahead to approve the subdivision ordinance anyway. Major revisions were made by the commissioners at Wednesday's meeting, too, changes which the public had no time to examine unless they were at the meeting.

True, it now comes before the board of supervisors, probably this week, for further examination. The supervisors, of course, have the final say.

Nancy Strathmeyer pointed out that the large property owners' organization, Monterey County Council for Conservation, now called the Monterey County Foundation for Conservation, was given a full 18 months' postponement to come up with its own proposals for the Monterey Peninsula Area General Plan. But in that case the request was from then Supervisor Tom Hudson whose interests were involved.
volved. And the CVPOA's modest request for a 30-dav continuance was ignored.

Citizens' duties

"There aren't too many good citizens left, I'm afraid." This was the comment made by a Carmel policeman as I agreed to press charges against a young man who had forced his way into my car as I parked it on Mission St. about 10 p.m. Yelling and honking the car horn had frightened the intruder away, but with the description in hand, the Carmel Police Dept. had found him in about 10 minutes.

They had been extremely efficient. I felt that it was only ethical that I should follow through the same way.

Monterey County Sheriff Jack Davenport reiterated the Carmel policemen's view. He said far too few people will take the time involved to sign a complaint against offenders. It requires a trip to the district attorney's office to sign a complaint . . . and if the accused chooses a jury trial, then it requires attendance and testimony at court.

Davenport said that it is a definite deterrent to further violations if citizens will take the responsibility of following through. Many get upset at vandalism or trespassing, or illegal shooting, or car swiping, but too few will report it, or press charges if the offender is apprehended.

PERSPECTIVE

TO THE EDITOR

Editor, The Outlook:

Now that the rush of the holiday season is over and people have time to read your newspaper, we at Carmel Convalescent Hospital wish to express our sincere gratitude and appreciation for the generosity shown by many friends and local organizations; also, individuals.

The spirit of Christmas was truly evident and faith in our fellow man is renewed. Our patients received many gifts which they will use throughout the year.

We are especially indebted to Mr. Ben Speller of the Carmel Lions Club for playing Santa Claus, the Kiwanis Club for their gifts of radios and other various gifts, the Carmel Valley Lionettes for the bed caddies for the entire house; also, the numerous organizations who sent carolers throughout the entire season, the Carmel Mission for their contributions, the Salvation Army, the Girl Scouts, as well as other organizations. We want to be certain that everyone knows of our gratitude.

The phrase "thank you" seems inadequate but it is the only phrase in my vocabulary to express our sentiments.

Sincerely,
Carmel Convalescent Hospital
Ritchie L. Patterson, Administrator

IN SHORT

ADVICE TO PARENTS who would understand their college age children has been dished out in booklet form by former Outlook editor Betty Branch who is now a counselor at U.C. Santa Barbara.

During Christmas vacation it was mailed to parents of freshmen and transfer students and has since been getting press notices far and wide.

This students' guidebook for parents points out that students will figure out for themselves what to do about sex, pot and booze, also that pressure from parents won't help produce good grades.

Parents are urged to be open to new ideas, remaining ready to learn, the booklet says. But they should also be ready to play the part of guide when asked, evidently, for it emphasizes:

"Should your son or daughter at any time make decisions you cannot condone, we make one final plea: do nothing to give your young person the feeling that he can no longer turn to you for guidance."

Much of the advice comes from the students themselves, in direct quotes, and was compiled by Mrs. Branch with Associate Dean Upton S. Palmer.

SCHOOL NOTES

CARMEL HIGH SCHOOL'S second year drafting class presented plans for an outdoor classroom to be located in this scenic area at the school board meeting Wednesday. Mr. Lippstreu, instructor, explained that the students were putting their classroom knowledge to practical use. Blueprints were presented to the board and one student is preparing a tentative cost estimate. It was suggested that shop classes could perhaps build fences and benches as an assignment.

RETIRING KIWANIS PRESIDENT, Joe Ricupero, presented the widow of Buck Raymond with a Kiwanis plaque honoring him posthumously for his dedicated service to the Valley club. Mr. Raymond passed away several weeks ago on the day originally scheduled for the presentation. (George T.C. Smith photo)

Two Advisory Board terms to expire soon

Upper Valley Advisory Board members stated their hope that Morden Buck and Lou Gardner will be reappointed to the Advisory Board. Their terms of service are expiring. The decision is not up to the board although they can make recommendation to the County Planning Commission which will make the appointments.

The members of the Advisory Board approved the request of Mrs. Gay Kuster for a variance in front and side yard reductions for an existing storeroom which is being made into living quarters.

Approval was also given variance in a front yard setback requested by Gail Fraties.

The request from Bank of America for approval for a new sign was denied.

INTERNATIONAL FRIENDSHIP at its best is personified by the Kiwanis Korean Village project, sparked by Prof. Alex Albov (shown at left) of the Defense Language Institute and a member of the Pacific Grove Kiwanis Club. CV Kiwanians Tuesday heard the story from Prof. Albov of the village in Korea, whose dedication he attended last fall with Dr. Paul St. Amand of the Inglewood Kiwanis Club, who was the other leader of the project. They are shown with the oldest village elder.

Speaker tells Kiwanians of internat'l club's work in Korea

A story of international good will, in which Kiwanis Clubs financed 102 houses in Korea, was told to Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club Tuesday by Prof. Alex Albov of the Defense Language Institute and the Pacific Grove Kiwanis Club.

As a member of the U.S. Kiwanis International Relations committee, Prof. Albov and Dr. Paul St. Amand of the Inglewood Kiwanis went to Korea last fall for the dedication of the new village which Kiwanis had launched.

"It is perhaps the greatest international Kiwanis project," he declared. "The enthusiasm generated is hard to imagine."

HITCHCOCK FETED

The CV Club at the meeting also feted old-timer Joe Hitchcock on his 87th birthday. He was introduced by Joe Ricupero with additional remarks by Herb Brownell.

Ned Skilling reported on his pet Kiwanis project in which more than $200 worth of gifts contributed by individuals and businesses were distributed to the jail farm inmates for the Christmas season.

He said that Smuckers Co. gave 400 jars of jelly and the Peter Paul Candy Co. plant in Salinas for the first time made a contribution, 480 candy bars. Another gift was 450 older, classical records, some of which Skilling passed on to the retarded children's school and convalescent homes.

Pres. Kevin Walsh praised Skilling for his special service.

Walsh also announced that Sheriff Jack Davenport and charter member By Ford have been made honorary members of CV Kiwanis.

The Kiwanis Korean Village, Prof. Albov reported, is very close to the demarcation zone,

Ansel Adams honored at U-C Santa Cruz

Internationally renowned photographer Ansel Adams of Carmel Highlands has been elected an honorary fellow of Stevenson College at the University of California, Santa Cruz, Dr. F. M. Glenn Willson, provost of Stevenson College, announced.

Ansel Adams, the announcement declared, has demonstrated his artistic mastery as well as his ardent interest in conservation in more than 17 books portraying the natural wonders of western North America.

His most recent publication, with text by Nancy Newhall, is Fiat Lux, commemorating the observation of the University of California Centennial (1868-1968). He has been a member of the board of directors of the Sierra Club since 1934.

Born in San Francisco, Adams became interested in the art of interpretive photography in the 1930's. In 1937, he moved to Yosemite Valley where some of his most outstanding work was done.

His association with the University of California has been a long one. In 1946, he founded the first department of photography at the California School of Fine Arts, now the San Francisco Art Institute, affiliated with UC.

In 1965, he delivered the first charter address at the new University of California, Santa Cruz, campus and last summer conducted, with Nancy and Beaumont Newhall and Robert Katz, a two-week workshop, "Images and Words," there. He is now helping to develop a student organization on conservation activities on the UCSC campus.

In 1961 he received an honorary degree of doctor of fine arts from the University in recognition of his achievements.

RICHARD BRINTON

Followed father's footsteps

Dick Brinton is happy with his "family business"

Door knobs and door mats, sculpture and stereo, toys and tablecloths, fertilizers and fireplaces, tools and towels, paint and pipe fittings and bar stools and barbecues.

All these and much more can be found in "Brinton's Remarkable Hardware Store." It is a far cry from the old fashioned hardware store with paints and nails and tools and the smell of an oil stove smoking in the rear.

When Richard Brinton opened his hardware store at Carmel Rancho Shopping Center in November of 1962, it was not without a great deal of experience in the business, because his father had been in retail hardware for 40 years. Brinton had started his training early, helping out in the store, located in the Willow Glen area of San Jose, from the time he was nine years old.

HELPED FATHER

While he was a student at San Jose State, Richard decided that his eventual goal was his own business, and he got his degree in business administration. After he graduated from college, he went to work full time at his father's store for two years. When his dad started thinking of retiring from the business, Richard started thinking of finding a new location for himself.

A paint salesman who stopped at the store told him about the new shopping center being built at Carmel. After a weekend trip to look over the location, the decision was made and the lease was signed three months later.

Although Richard is the sole owner of the business, it it still a family operation.

When his father sold his San Jose store and retired two years ago, he and his wife moved to Carmel. However, it did not take long for Joe to discover that complete retirement was not his cup of tea. Builders' hardware (door pulls, drawer pulls, door knobs, etc.) had always been a hobby as well as part of his stock, so Brinton senior joined his son, working in the Carmel store and enlarging and developing the lines of builders' hardware.

Richard's mother is also active in the business. Since it opened in 1962, she has acted as bookkeeper.

TAHOE RETREAT

Although Richard's wife, Mary Ann, is not active in the store, she is very active on the Peninsula, serving with the Symphony Guild and Children's Home Society. They have two small children, David, age 3, and Craig, age one and a half. This also keeps her rather busy. When they first arrived here, before the birth of David, Mary Ann was home economics teacher at Carmel High School for two years.

Whenever they can, the Brinton's slip off to their other house at Lake Tahoe for snow skiing in the wintertime. They are also sailing enthusiasts and Mary Ann is an avid tennis player and swimmer.

Located as Brinton's Hardware is, right between the end of Carmel and the beginning of Carmel Valley, Richard serves in organizations in both areas. He is a member of the Carmel Rotary Club, and is second vice president of the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce.

FRIENDLY, HELPFUL

The whole philosophy behind Brinton's Hardware is to keep it friendly and helpful. According to Richard Brinton, it was founded on a basis of long experience in quality lines of merchandise and they emphasize personal service to customers.

"It's a small family business that has been very successful," he concluded.

Media, techniques on display

An exhibit set up by curator Stephen Brown to demonstrate painting and graphic techniques from pigment to finished product, is attracting much interest at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art Association gallery on Lincoln in Carmel.

The gallery-goer is shown, step by step, the actual equipment and supplies used for each media with an example of finished art work.

Pastels, oil, caustic, collage, fresco, water color and gouache, acrylic, egg tempera, casein, silk screen (seriograph), entaglio, etching, engraving and wood block printing... all are shown.

Works used to illustrate the various techniques belong to the permanent collection of M.P.M.A. except for those loaned by William Stone, Merilyn Brown and the Lakey Galleries Ltd. which loaned a Valenzin.

A copy of an El Greco painting in the master's favorite media, egg tempera, was made by Esther Williams to demonstrate that technique.

A small press belonging to Carmel High School is used for printing demonstrations and art supplies were contributed by Fred Klepich of Studio Art Supply.

Paintings exhibited at Carmel Town House

Oils and water colors by Eleanor Guttridge will be displayed at Town House in Carmel until Jan. 26.

Both landscapes and flower paintings are included in the exhibit in addition to several abstract works.

Mrs. Guttridge has exhibited in the San Francisco Bay area. While living in Berkeley, she was a member of the San Francisco Art Institute, the San Francisco Women Artists and the California Society of Etchers.

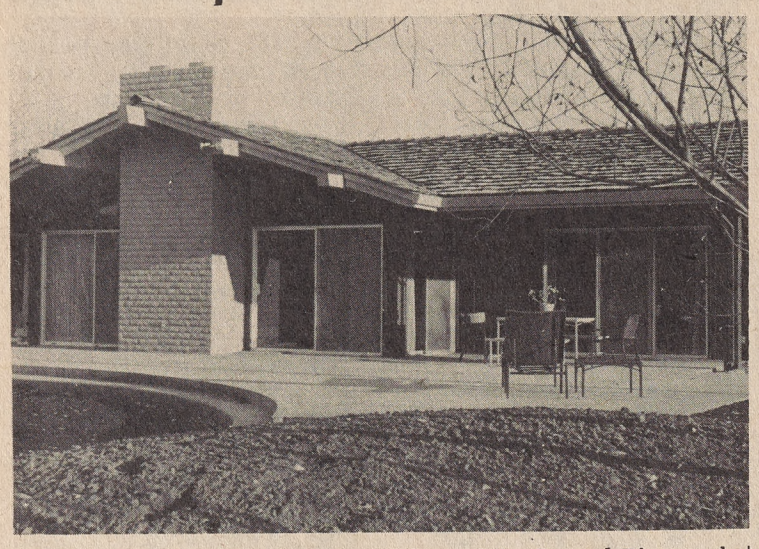
OCEAN AVENUE CARMEL

C.V. Golf & Country Club Home

Monique has a bathroom like a movie set



THE YARD DROPS off at the rear toward the Carmel River and at the side to the sixth green at the Golf and Country Club. Sliding doors in most rooms open the one story ranch house to the out-of-doors. The redwood house is built on a concrete slab with radiant heat

"One of the most marvelous things in the whole house is the bathroom. I just love it!" exclaimed Monique Rosendale, as she gave a tour of their new home at Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club. It only takes one glance to see why.

Thick, shaggy honey-colored carpeting, full-length mirrored panels on sliding doors at each end, a corner dressing table, also completely mirrored, indirect lighting in translucent ceiling panels... and last but not least... a sunken marble-type bathtub.

John and Monique moved into their new house just before Thanksgiving. Previously they had lived in Salinas where he has been an attorney for the past 20 years.

Marvin Soper of Salinas designed the house, under the direction of John and Monique, who knew just what they wanted. Fred Brook was responsible for the interior design.

COURTYARD

The house is entered through an enclosed courtyard leading to the double doors of the entryway.

The entrance is dramatically high-ceilinged with a terrazzo floor, and just beyond is the living room in warm shades of brown and honey, with accents of gold and orange.

A second favorite point of the house is this casual, yet elegant living room with its warm colors. A painting by Fred Brooks highlights one wall and picks up all the tones. The stone fireplace features a raised hearth of exposed aggregate and the walls of the room are adobe, painted.

"I was scared to death of that one brown wall when Fred told me about it," Monique admitted, "but it is just right, and I love it now."

The house, built of adobe inside walls and stained redwood exterior, is located just off the sixth green of the Golf and Country Club and the property runs down to the river. The shake roof, which combines both pitched and flat sections covers 2600 square feet of living space, in a "U" shape.

The living room and entry hall form the base of the "U," with the dining room, kitchen and utility section forming one arm and the two bedrooms, study and two baths completing the other wing.

The inside section of the "U" makes the inside patio, onto which the guest bedroom and the hall open through sliding doors.

Sliding doors in the dining room, living room and bedroom open onto patios at the rear of the house overlooking the golf course and the river.

OPEN FEELING

Monique feels that it has captured the feeling of Carmel Valley in its openness to the out-of-doors, and its earthy colors ... a complete switch from their former home in Salinas, where the white carpeting alone gave a perishable, more formal, atmosphere.

Since they are active members of the CV Golf and Country Club this is also most convenient... they can slip in quickly for a cool refreshment between the sixth and seventh holes.

MONIQUE ROSENDALE'S fabulous bathroom is the highlight of the house as far as she is concerned. The ferns in the foreground sit at the edge of the marble sunken bathtub. There is a large separate stall shower with windows opening to a garden area outside. The hanging lights in jeweltone colors are reflected in the many mirrors covering walls and doors. The room itself is about three times the size of a normal bathroom... a spot in which to luxuriate.

LEISURE TIMES

One act plays given at MPC

Two series of one-act play productions will begin today, Wednesday, in the Monterey Peninsula College Little Theater, with the public cordially invited to attend without charge at 8:30 p.m

Six student directors — David Allen, John Rousseau, John Morgan, John Soprano, Ron Guillemette and Jim LeSage — will direct some 30 beginning and intermediate drama students in what will constitute their final examinations.

On Jan. 17 and 19, cuttings from "J.B." by Archibald MacLeish and "Dark at the Top of the Stairs" by William Inge will be presented, as will an original play, "The Isosceles Bed," written and directed by student David Allen.

The second series, on Jan. 18 and 20, will feature scenes from John Osborne's "Look Back in Anger" and Tennessee Williams' "The Lady of Larkspur Lotion."

Photography "weekend" to be held Jan. 27-28

A weekend "photography event" is scheduled Jan. 27-28 by Friends of Photography at the organization's Sunset Photography Center, Carmel.

A panel discussion on "The Subject Matter of Photography" will be held Saturday morning, Jan. 27, beginning at 9:30 in the room next to the Friends of Photography gallery at Sunset Center.

A field trip will be held Sunday, Jan. 28.

Panelists for the Saturday morning event will include Bill Webb, moderator; Wynn Bullock and Milton Halberstadt, photographers; Marlinde von Ruhs, painter and a fifth panelist to be announced.

The panel will discuss the degree to which successful photography relates to or depends upon subject matter portrayed. Those attending may bring some of their own prints for discussion, although they are asked to limit them to not more than three.

Those planning to attend are asked to notify Friends of Photography by phone at the gallery, 624-6330 between 1 and 4 p.m. except Mondays, or by writing P.O. Box 239, Carmel.

Free concert at MPC on Sunday afternoon

The Monterey Peninsula Chamber Singers, conducted by Kenneth Ahrens and accompanied by Camille Olaeta, will present a concert Sunday, Jan. 21, at 3:30 p.m. in the MPC Music Hall.

This will be the first public performance for the group, which functions as an evening class instructed by Ahrens at the college.

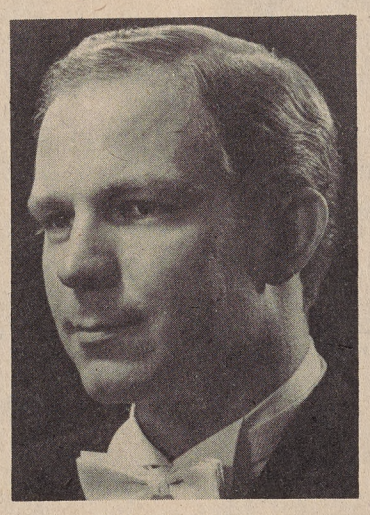
The program will include a 17th century mass by Marc-Antoine Charpentier, "Messe de Minuet pour Noel," first presented as a midnight mass on Christmas Eve.

Ahrens is director of music at Santa Catalina School.

Bass soloist to sing at Sunset

At the Carmel Music Society's concert this Friday night, the outstanding young American bass, Thomas Paul, will be remembered by members of the audience for his performances with the Bach Festival a decade or so ago. Though his intent at that time was to become a conductor, his delivery of the role of Jesus in the St. John Passion brought superlative praise from the music critics.

Now Thomas Paul has adopted singing as his career and is regarded by high-ups in music circles as well on his way to becoming one of America's leading basses.



THOMAS PAUL

Friday's concert will be at Sunset Auditorium starting at 8:30. Although most seats are taken by subscription, a few tickets will be available at the box office prior to the performance, or by calling the Friar Tuck Book Store at Mission and 6th, 624-7500.

For his concert, Thomas Paul has chosen a varied repertory including works by Handel, Schubert, Verdi and Ibert.

When she was about eight years old, Jennifer Lovejoy started making mobiles at home in Pacific Grove, and she's been making them in many shapes and forms ever since.

Jennifer lives in Carmel Valley now, and some of her mobiles and her wire and bead earrings can be seen at Rudi Marzi's Monterey Pottery Shop on Del Fino Place.

MANY CHANGES

They have undergone many changes over the years and presently are very light and made of copper wire. Designs, figures, flowers, and other forms are often filled in with colored tissue paper which is sprayed with acrylic, giving it a translucent appearance, as well as a durable surface.

The mobiles she enjoys making the most are special orders for people who want a certain subject or phase of their lives depicted in a hanging decoration.

One which she has made shows many phases of sea life, from fishes to formed out of copper er has a subject m lightness of constru slightest air current.

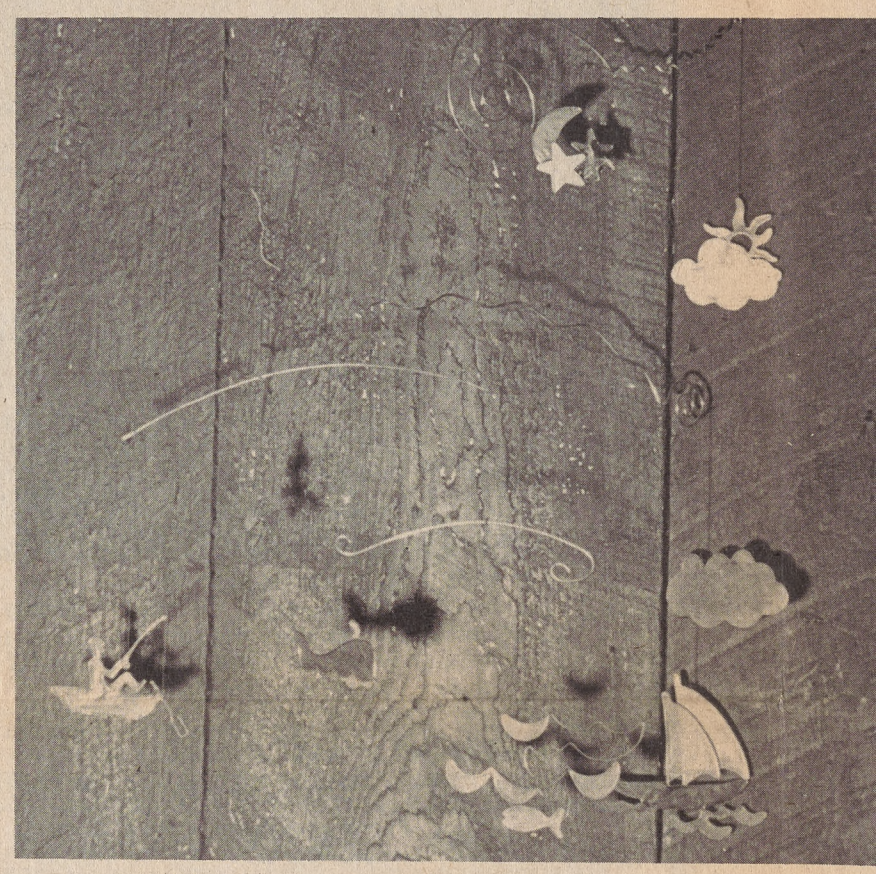
JENNIFER LOVEJOY'S TOTEM POLE was carved from an old redwood beam she found on Cannery Row. Its age is attested to by the fact that it was fitted with square nails. Although the beam was not the best texture for carving..."It's really just plain rotten," Jennifer stated... the totem pole has been set to let nature finish the weathering in the garden adjacent to the cabin.



MOBILES ARE MADE of copper wire in fanciful shapes, filled in with colored tissue and sprayed for durability. Their extreme lig motion.

Story and pictures by Ginnie Dre

JENNIFER HOPES TO be able to make a living from the various craft forms in which she is working. One of her wood sculptures was accepted for the Arts and Crafts Festival last fall, and others are on display at Moran and Buby's Carmel Gallery.

ife, from fishes to a boy fishing in a rowboat, all ormed out of copper wire with colored inserts. Anoth-er has a subject matter of horses and riding. The ightness of construction makes them move at the slightest air current.

She first became interested in working with copper hrough Valleyite Milton Williams. She studied with im long enough to learn some of the tricks of handling nd then struck out on her own.

Although she has had no formal training in art or sculpture, about a year and a half ago Jennifer became nterested in wood carving and presently has several wood sculptures on display at Malcolm Moran and Don-ld Buby's Gallery in Carmel.

IDEAS FROM NATURE

Jennifer gets most of her ideas from nature. She usually works outside beside her redwood cabin next o the river, unless the weather is too bad.

Jennifer was born and raised in Pacific Grove and as a child knew many of the well-known artists and craftsmen in the area through her father, Rich, who was a reporter for The Herald before his death in 1956.

Her mother was born in Alaska of Russian origin and many of the artifacts which Jennifer grew up with were of Alaskan Indian origin. Jennifer said her mother claims to be part Indian, but the relatives who still live in Alaska deny it . . . preferring to be of pure Russian extraction.

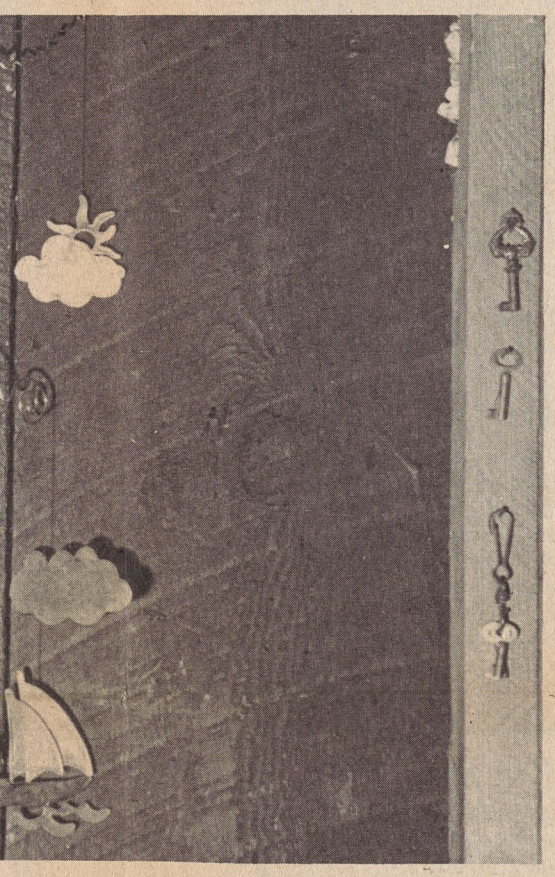
Perhaps it is partially this heritage that lies behind the redwood totem pole which Jennifer carved for her front yard.

Her move to Carmel Valley came as a result of a long time friendship with Wilma (Billie) Paddock on whose property Jennifer is staying.

With the river at her feet and nothing but woods, rocks and moss for miles around, Jennifer should have plenty of inspiration from nature to keep her busy.

THE THREE DIMENSIONAL collage Jennifer holds was one of her first ventures into this art. She said it took weeks to complete the textured block of nails, bits and pieces of many sizes and colors.

Making earrings (displayed in the frame at left) came as a natural outgrowth of the wire work . . . and besides there is a tremendous demand for them and they sell quickly.



. Their extreme lightness keeps them in constant otion.

IN CONSTRUCTING THE MOBILES, she makes continuous designs from copper wire, bending it and twisting as she works in free form. Minute figures depicting various sports, or marine creatures are among her favorites.

● Alliance Francaise

On Saturday, Jan. 20, at 3 p.m. the French Conversation Tea will take place at the home of Mrs. Phyllis Jervey in Carmel. Mrs. Germaine Olivie will be cohostess and Mrs. James Hathaway will give a reading in French. Members are asked to telephone for reservation either to Mrs. Leonard McCoy, 372-5449, or Mrs. Jervey at 624-2003.

The Alliance wishes to remind students of the French language between the ages of 18 and 25 that in order to become members of the newly formed "La Jeune Alliance," they must mail $2.50 (made out to Alliance Francaise) to Box 3573, Carmel, together with information concerning status of their French studies.

If eligible, they may compete for this summer's trip to Paris and scholarship to the Paris school of the Alliance Francaise. Further information may be obtained by telephoning either Mrs. Jerome Carlson, 624-3195 or Mrs. James Hathaway, 372-1138, co-presidents of the local Alliance.

Mrs. John Dowdakin and Mrs. Jack Longfellow of Carmel Valley, who are native born French teachers, will conduct classes in French. Those who wish to attend should mail their names, addresses and telephone numbers to Alliance Francaise, Box 3573, Carmel.

● Gem & Mineral Society

The Carmel Valley Gem and Mineral Society has announced a new slate of officers, installed last month at its Christmas party at Tularcitos School.

Robert Mullnix of Carmel is president; Rochel Kopp, Carmel Valley, vice president; Coralee Cowgill, Monterey, recording secretary; Mervin Fair, Monterey, treasurer; E.M. Beecher, Carmel, director; Gail Holloway, Carmel Valley, director; Urcel Holloway, federation director, and Palmer Olson, Seaside, director.

Jean Allen of Carmel Valley, editor of the society's monthly bulletin, "The Prospector," noted that the annual dinner was a huge success (over 130 members attending), largely due to the work of Lloy and Betty Bell, Otto and Alyce Thompson, Allaire Hewitson, Rochel Kopp, Bob and Sally Mullnix and installing officer Urcel Holloway.

● USNPGS Officers' Wives

The Naval Postgraduate School Officers' Wives Club regular monthly business meeting, to be conducted by Mrs. Henry Willimon, president, will feature a talk by Mrs. Dorothy Constans Jan. 24 at 8 p.m. at the club.

Mrs. Constans, a member of American Institute of Decorators, has been a practicing decorator in this area for 31 years and has taught adult education courses for the past ten in Pacific Grove. She will also instruct a decorating course for NPGS wives beginning Feb. 6.

The Rhyming Philosopher

At last the Christmas lights are taken down,
The tree is burned, the trimmings put away,
Our face resumes its customary frown
As more important matters crowd the day.

But still some well-intentioned ones persist
In hanging on to Christmas with a zest
For spreading cheer. Such sentimentalist
Display is most unbusinesslike, at best.

If you and I succumbed to such a view
Or attitude toward our fellow man,
And other people got the message too,
The world might then become Utopian.

It might end wars; and there goes down the drain
All hopes of mounting profits. Who'd buy guns
And armored tanks and goods that appertain
To make dead heroes of our gallant sons?

I wonder, too, if people had the means
To send the war-like leaders to the wall
And end the bloody turmoil, would our dreams
Of Peace on Earth solve anything at all?

Peggy and Tim Morrow's Maui Gallery lauded in article

"The Gallery," an arts and crafts shop in the historic old whaling town of Lahaina on the island of Mauii, Hawaii, came in for rave compliments in an article in the Mauii News recently.

Interesting to us because the shop, which falls into the category of an art museum because of its collection of valuable antiquities, is owned and operated by Peggy and Tim Morrow, daughter and son-in-law of the Frank Porters of Carmel Valley.

The article says in part:

"The Gallery is a beautiful shop were one can buy clothing, jewelry and art in many and various forms. Interspersed among the merchandise are real museum pieces, many done by that master craftsman Farberge who created beautiful things for famous and wealthy people in the latter part of the 19th century. There are items which belonged to the last Czar for example....Many of the items appear in colored pictures in museum catalogues and, in fact, most of this kind of beauty is located in the larger museums and art galleries in this world. Yet we in Lahaina can walk in and admire them on display in our own Front Street....."

Peggy was in the real estate business with her brother Paul Porter before going to Lahaina. Tim is a former owner of La Casa Rosa restaurant and food specialty shop in San Juan Bautista.

Kiwanis in Korea

which separates North and South Korea.

MET PRIME MINISTER

He and Dr. Amand were greeted by hundreds of enthusiastic Koreans at the dedication ceremony, which produced front-page news in Korean newspapers. They were also received by the Korean prime minister in Seoul.

About 100 Kiwanis Clubs, including Pacific Grove, Monterey, Salinas and Freedom clubs in this area, each gave $149, which was the cost of materials for a house, which was built by the occupants. The Korean government contributed the land and chose the recipients, who were chiefly destitute war veterans.

Prof. Albov recalled how the event for him symbolized a 50-year cycle fighting Communism. A white Russian who fled Russia when the Bolsheviks took over, he continued opposition in the Balkans where he was imprisoned.

Communism expanded after World War II, he said, because of the prestige of victory against the Nazis, because it thrives on misery and poverty and chaos, and because of the policy of Western appeasement.

He predicted its eventual downfall because of its false economic base, plus unfulfilled promises and its base of terror, lies and fraud, and because freedom is contagious.

He added that further support of the Kiwanis Korean Village project is necessary with donations of fertilizer, seed, chickens and such basic needs, until it becomes self-supporting in two or three years.

At the previous week's meeting, Mrs. C.J. Raymond was presented the service plaque by Pres. Joe Ricupero, which was to have been presented to her late husband, "Buck," longtime Carmel Valley Kiwanian, who died last month.

Tributes to Buck Raymond's memory were paid by Herb Brownell and Sheriff Jack Davenport.

Tom is a student at the University of Maryland.

The young couple will reside in Riverdale, Md., while Tom continues his education.

Y-Indian Guides split tribe

A GIANT TEEPEE in the living room of the Ed McCurry home provided the setting for the splitting of the Y-Indian Guide tribe, which had grown too large. Seated in the teepee is chief Gary Eldridge (feathered headdress) and Medicine Man McCurry (back to camera) who are leaders of Cachagua tribe of the YMCA-sponsored organization. Boys from 8 to 11 are eligible to join and their fathers must attend the bi-monthly meetings with them.

ON SANTA LUCIA

It's that attractive corner you've noticed so often in passing – handsome rustic house with shake roof, fabulous flowers all year around. Breathtaking view of Pt. Lobos. One of its most interesting features is the step-up-to living room, such a gracious size, so beautifully paneled and beamed, with such a great fireplace – and, of course, The View! 4 bedrooms, 3 baths. Price $67,500.

ENCLOSED COURTYARD

4 or 5 bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, artist's studio which would be a fine playroom also. You'll feel so secluded and you'll have such a secure feeling for your children when they can play in the big, fully-enclosed yard. A sheltering old oak tree is a beautiful feature of the yard. Excellent financing available. This house is vacant and you could move right in. Price $42,500.

ON JACK'S PEAK

We hardly ever have anything up there in that 5 acre minimum zone area, especially with the Monterey harbor view, but we are delighted to offer now a most interesting home on Loma Alta – beautiful setting, beautiful view – for only $85,000. Especially for nature lovers who enjoy seclusion in a prestige area – where else can you find five acres only a couple of miles to either Carmel or Monterey?

IN RANCHO CANADA

And here's another lovely area where there isn't much available. This is a great house for family living. 4 or 5 bedrooms, cedar exterior, heavy shake roof, wonderful heating system, 2 fireplaces. Fine play space both indoors and out – the approx. acre lot runs down to the river. It's only two years old. Built by a fine contractor for his own home, it has all the little extras you never find in the average house. $65,500 – and you'll agree it's well worth it!

HOME WITH GUEST HOUSE

This interesting 2 bedroom has a split level, a beautiful setting on a half acre lot around behind Carmel High School, hundreds of bird visitors, lovely view of the hills, and a completely separate guest house across the patio – whose main feature is a great oak tree. It's a peaceful, private place. And it's only $38,-500.

Garden Thoughts

by Salih Mehdy

of the Oleander Garden Shop

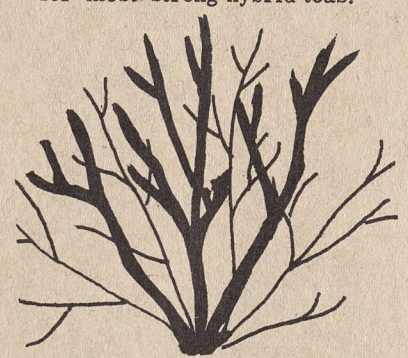
Here are some tips about pruning your hybrid tea roses. The main object of pruning is to have a well-balanced bush with its canes and its center opened so air will circulate freely inside. Pruning should divert the new growth to the outside and to an upright position. This is achieved by pruning above a bud which is pointing to the outside, not toward the heart of the bush.

PRUNING PROCEDURE

The best time to prune is around the last half of January. Let the buds be your guide when they start to swell. You need a good pair of gloves to protect your hands from the thorns, a small pocket saw to cut larger old canes (this tool folds like a pocket knife), and a can of pruning seal. Now you can get pruning seal in handy aerosol cans. Squirt the seal on the wound right after cutting a cane; this way you won't forget any. Start by pruning all the dead wood and those which have cracks and lesions, and canes which are crossing others and rubbing against them.

SHAPING

Then it is time to study the bush and start to balance it. Cuts should be made about 1/4" above a desirable bud, with a 45 degree angle sloping downward. Remember that the more you prune, the less is the number of flowers you will get, but the flowers will be larger. Drastic pruning robs the rose of stored food; moderation is better for the health of the bush. Finished pruning at about 18" from the ground is about right for most strong hybrid teas.



PRUNE LIGHT BRANCHES RETAIN HEAVY CANES

After pruning comes the cleaning up of all debris around the bushes and taking off all remaining leaves. They harbor spores of mildew, rust and black leaf diseases. Then spray with dormant spray containing calcium sulphide or copper compound. Don't forget that now is the time to dormant-spray your fruit and other deciduous trees.

FENCES

There are many types of fences which you can use to protect your outdoor living areas from prevalent winds. You might think that a solid fence will give you the best performance, but this is not so. When the wind hits such a fence, it goes over and some spills down.

A fence similar to the solid one, but with its upper 2/3 built of lath spaced 1/2" apart lets most of the wind flow above the fence in a straight line with no spilling. If you want your sitting area within 7'-8' from the fence, then a solid fence with a 1 1/2' baffle angling toward the wind is good.

ELEAGNUS

Yellow-spotted eleagnus is a very nice shrub with handsome leaves spotted irregularly: a yellow area in the center surrounded by silvery green. Leaves are about 2" long and 1 1/2" wide, glistening when the sun shines on them. The foliage lasts a long time as cut branches, and can be used alone or with other materials. The plant does well in a tub and can be pruned to a picturesque shape. This recent cold weather did not affect it a bit, and its green-golden crown of foliage is a happy sight to see.

Pet of the Week

SKI BUM? Reports are good from Badger Pass, Heavenly Valley and other points Northeast. This young fellow is all ready for someone to adopt him and take him along on a trip to the snow.

Frosty mornings don't phase him a bit. He's had all his shots and is a healthy, happy four-month-old mostly poodle pooch, eager for family fun.

Anything else you want to know about him you can find out by phoning 375-3333 . . . that's the SPCA Animal Shelter at 2099 David Ave. in New Monterey. (Photo by Virginia and Louis Kay)

DeMars explains PlanCom procedure

TELEGRAM SENT

CVPOA, according to Retiring Pres. Underwood, sent the following telegram to the County Planning Commission Tuesday:

"The Carmel Valley Property Owners Association is vitally concerned about the revised subdivision ordinance that is to be discussed at your meeting today. We have asked Mr. DeMars to speak to this topic at the general meeting of the association on Thur. Jan. 11, so that we might become better informed about the implications of the proposed ordinance as it relates to property and residences of the Carmel Valley. If it is your intent to reach a final decision regarding the ordinance today, you will do so without first providing the CVPOA an opportunity to study the revised proposal, to react with a formal statement, to sit in a study session with the commission and to be adequately represented at a final hearing. Because of the complexity of the proposed ordinance and because a reasonable number of announced public study sessions have not been held, I request that a 30-day continuance be granted and that a date for a public study session be set with notification of the session be sent to the CVPOA."

The wire was signed: CVPOA Pres. C.L. Underwood.

DeMars answered that the subdivision ordinance now goes to the board of supervisors which may take another three months to approve it and he invited the CVPOA to present recommendations for modification to that body.

$2,242 IN TREASURY

CVPOA, according to retiring Treas. James Miller's report, begins the new year with current assets of $2,242.17. Income for the past year was $1,258 and expenses $994, he said.

One of the provisions of the proposed new subdivision ordinance which planner DeMars outlined would require undergrounding of utility lines except where where trees would be severely damaged by trenching in hilly areas.

Col. Tyner, who has been spearheading undergrounding utilities in Carmel Knolls, commented he "would look with a jaundiced eye on exceptions." He pointed out that 95% of the trenching for the underground utilities in Carmel Knolls was done by hand, which meant that there was no problem in protecting trees.

DeMars explained that the county's first subdivision ordinance was adopted in 1945 and that it was changed the last time in 1953. Some of the proposed modifications are to comply with state law, he added.

He opened his talk by praising Carmel Valley's "climate," both weather-wise and the intelligent "interest and feeling of the people to develop the area in the best way.

"It takes a dedicated partnership of the people and the county government to achieve this," DeMars declared. "The people of the community must be vigilant and believe they have something worth fighting for."

He added that there will be disagreements, but that good planning is often developed through knowledgeable opposition.

He said that recommendations of such groups as CVPOA are helpful and are taken seriously by county officials. They may not always be accepted, he said, as sometimes the supervisors overrule their planning commission and department.

"But your batting average is very high for acceptance of recommendations," the planning director said.

Among the major proposals of the revised subdivision ordinance which DeMars pointed out:

Any property being divided into two or more pieces is a subdivision, a minor subdivision up to 40 acres.

A soil report may be required if slope is over 10% and a three-dimensional model if more than 15% slope.

A major concern about the proposed new ordinance expressed by Mrs. Strathmeyer is that property for subdivision could not be sold until all requirements for development have been completed.

"People may wake up after the new subdivision ordinance becomes effective and find they have only one lot where they had two lots before," she said.

Church to hold annual meeting

Annual meeting of the congregation of St. Philip's Lutheran Church will be held at 11 Sunday morning, following the morning service.

New members of the church council are to be elected, reports from auxiliaries heard and the annual budget adopted. A potluck dinner will follow.

Rev. J. Bernhard Bretheim, pastor, is planning to attend a meeting of the Institute for American Missions in Los Angeles Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 22 and 23.
